NEW PLAN WILL PUT LEE COUNTY IN NEW SETTING

Will Divorce Lee From Its Old Associates In Cong. District

Drastic realignment of congressional districts in Illinois, agreed upon by the legislative committee on reapportionment at Springfield today, would take Lee county away from all of its neighbors, with whom it has always been associated in congressional matters, and place it in a new district together with Rock Island, Mercer, Henderson, Warren, Henry, Stark and Putnam counties, with a population of 274,739. Chester Thompson of Rock Island, a Democrat, is now representing the district to which Lee would be added.

At the same time the plan agreed upon would add Winnebago and DeKalb counties to the present Fifteenth district in place of Lee, making it imperative for Congressmen Leo Allen of Galena and John T. Buckbee of Rockford, both Republicans, to fight it out in the proposed new district.

Turn up by the equalizing process of reapportionment, each of the downstate districts had its boundary lines changed in at least two places by the committee, which completed its remapping work late yesterday.

Speaker Henry T. Rainey of the National House lost one and was given two new counties under the reapportionment bill, which is to be introduced next week by the joint committee headed by Rep. Frank McClure of Abingdon.

Would Save Rainey The problem of keeping Speaker Rainey in normally Democratic territory was solved only by trespassing into the home county of Congressman J. Earl Major, Hillsboro Democrat. Rainey lost Brown county and was given Macoupin and Montgomery. Major will probably be eliminated from the 1934 campaign by promotion in the form of a federal appointment.

Where downstate Illinois now has fifteen congressional districts, in addition to the two Congressmen-at-large, the new plan is to give it thirteen. Cook county also is to have thirteen districts, three more than its present total, while the twenty-seventh district is a compromise of southern Cook and five nearby counties — LuPage, Will, Kankakee, Kendall and Grundy.

There is a possibility that the committee's bill will be changed in the legislature, but the proposed districts in general meet the requirement of approximately equality in population.

Some To Retire In four cases, however, the McClure reapportionment places two or more incumbents in the same district, which would automatically force the retirement of some of them in the primaries next May.

In the new Bloomington-Danville district, three Democratic incumbents must have their homes — Frank Gillespie of Bloomington, of the present 17th district, James A. Meeks, Danville, of the 18th, and Martin A. Brennan of Bloomington, Congressman-at-large.

The populous East St. Louis area was reduced in size, comprising three counties — St. Clair, Madison and Bond. Within this district reside two Democratic incumbents from Belleville, Walter Nesbitt, representative-at-large, and Edwin M. Schaefer of the 22nd.

Two Republicans are left to fight for survival in the northwest region, John T. Buckbee of Rockford and Leo E. Allen of Galena.

The remapping leaves room for a new man only in one district, composed of Sangamon and four counties to the eastward.

Downstate Districts The new districts have not been numbered. The downstate grouping of counties, with total population and names of Congressmen living within the district, is as follows:

Joe Davies, Stephenson, Winnebago, Carroll, Whiteside, Ogle and DeKalb; population, 295,906; Congressmen Leo E. Allen, Galena, and John T. Buckbee, Rockford, Republicans.

Boone, McHenry, Lake and Kane; 279,871; Frank R. Reid, Aurora, Republican.

Rock Island, Mercer, Henderson, Warren, Henry, Stark, Bureau, Putnam and Lee; 274,739; Chester Thompson, Rock Island, Democrat.

La Salle, Marshall, Peoria and Tazewell; 298,144; Everett M. Dirksen, Pekin, Republican.

Woodford, Livingston, McLean, Ford, Iroquois and Vermilion; 268,747; Frank Gillespie and Martin A. Brennan, both of Bloomington, and James A. Meeks, Danville, all Democrats.

Knox, Fulton, Hancock, McDonough, Adams, Schuyler and Brown; 230,820; J. Leroy Adair, Quincy, Democrat.

Mason, Cass, Menard, Pike, Scott, Morgan, Calhoun, Green, Jersey, Macoupin and Montgomery; 234,315; Speaker Henry T. Rainey, Carlinville, and J. Earl Major, Hillsboro, Democrats.

Logan, Dewitt, Macon, Piatt, Champaign and Douglas; 226,967; D. C. Dobbins, Champaign Democrat.

Sangamon, Christian, Shelby, Moultrie and Coles; 225,304; no incumbents in district.

TWO STATES TO DECIDE REPEAL CONVICTIONS

Delaware And Nevada, Supposedly Wet, To Elect Delegates

Wilmington, Del. May 26—(AP)—Delaware adds its voice tomorrow to the national chorus on the theme of prohibition repeal.

Voters in the state's 222 precincts will select 17 delegates-at-large to the convention that will meet June 24 at Dover.

Observers said Wilmington, which has about half of the state's population of 225,000, probably will swing the result in favor of the wet delegates.

Delaware, except Wilmington, went dry by local option in 1917.

NEVADA TO VOTE Reno, Nevada, May 26—(AP)—Nevada, so-called "wide open" state, which ten years ago dropped its own brief experiment with prohibition, will take its first step tomorrow on repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

At precinct mass meetings, delegates will be elected to county conventions set for June 10. The county conventions in turn will elect delegates to a state convention called for September 5.

Paper Co. Boosts Wages 10 Per Cent

ROOSEVELT MAY SUBMIT REFORM MEASURE TODAY

While Congress Considers Evidence Given In Morgan Probe

Washington, May 26—(AP)—Democratic congressional leaders today passed the word that an important administration banking bill would be introduced shortly for consideration by Congress at this session.

Chairman Steagall of the House Banking committee said he probably would have an "important announcement" to make later in the day.

Speaker Rainey also has been advised of the legislation, but declined to make known its purpose.

It was hinted, however, that the legislation was drawn on the basis of disclosures before the Senate Banking committee in its investigation of J. P. Morgan & Company.

Only yesterday the Senate passed the Glass bank reform bill. The House has approved a similar measure by Steagall. The next procedure is for adjustment of differences between the two branches by a conference committee.

To Limit Deduction An amendment to the administration's public works industrial control measure to limit deductions from capital losses to one year in making out income tax returns was approved today by the House Ways and Means committee.

The proposal, an outgrowth of testimony before the Senate Banking committee that Morgan had paid no income tax in this country in the last two years, was approved as the House neared a vote on the huge measure. A final roll call was expected before adjournment.

Meanwhile, the committee disclosed it was studying the testimony of Morgan and his associates.

As explained by experts of the committee the amendment will prevent the carry over of net losses from one year to another in arriving at a base for the payment of taxes.

Representative Bacharach (R. N. J.) meanwhile, announced that his motion to send the bill back to the Ways and Means committee for the substitution of a sales tax instead of the committee's program for boosting income and gasoline taxes, would provide for a two and three fourths per cent levy on general manufacturers sales, exempt food, clothing and medicines.

Indications were that the vote on the sales tax issue would be close.

NorthWestern Yards At Nelson Are Busy

Activity in the NorthWestern yards at Nelson has increased to a figure which represents the busiest in many months, it was reported today.

The month of May is expected to exceed in many departments, the activity in the yards for almost two years. From present indications it is expected that the Nelson terminal will be back at normal operation within a very short time.

It is reported on good authority that the East Clinton yards, which have been closed, are to be reopened the first of June with a normal force of workmen returning to their duties. Far western and southern shipments have increased the business at the Nelson yards, it is said, and at the present rate of increase, it is expected that by June 15, a train will pass through Nelson every half hour of the 24 hours.

Rumors are to the effect that the passenger service is to be increased next month to accommodate patrons of the Pageant of Progress in Chicago, which is expected to necessitate the operation of several special trains throughout the summer.

Former Bosses Of Morgan's Partner Are Inquisitors

Washington, May 26—(AP)—One of J. P. Morgan's partners is facing two of his old bosses at the Senate investigation of his firm.

Russell Cornell Leffingwell was Assistant Secretary of the Treasury during Woodrow Wilson's administration. William Gibbs McAdams and Carter Glass in turn headed the Treasury. Both are now in the Senate, they sit among the inquisitors.

Morgan Inquiry Recessed In Committee Row Precipitated By Sen. Glass Today

Virginia Senator Insists On Knowing Inquiry's End

Washington, May 26—(AP)—The Senate investigation of J. P. Morgan & Company was recessed today until next Wednesday after a bitter row over the course of the inquiry, which followed Senator Glass (D. Va.) challenging the direction of the investigation and stating the minutes of the committee disclosed no record of the employment of Ferdinand Pecora as counsel.

Earlier testimony that the United Corporation, whose books are kept in the office of Morgan & Company, holds an interest in utility operating companies that do a large percentage of the gas and electric business of the nation, had been given.

George Howard, president of the United Corporation, a utilities holding concern, testified as to its organization in which it acquired stock in various utilities at $12,000,000 less than market value from the Morgan banking partnership and in turn the huge bank obtained a controlling interest in the United Corporation.

Consulting his records now and again, the ready witness said the companies in which his corporation holds an interest do 22 per cent of the electric and gas business of the country, on an output basis.

In the hot and crowded Senate caucus room, the appeal of the third witness in the investigation into activities by the Morgan firm. Howard was unable to give the population served by his companies, but Pecora presented a photograph from Morgan & Company, dated September 20, 1929, and putting the population served at 35,272,000 distributed in New York, New Jersey, Connecticut, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Ohio, Michigan, Illinois, Tennessee, Mississippi, Alabama and Georgia.

Have you had a survey made since?" Pecora asked.

"At some time I asked someone in Bonbright & Company to make a tabulation, but I don't know where it is," Howard said.

"Was no one in the United Corporation competent to make such a survey?"

"Really, there is not. We have no engineers."

Three Morgan Directors Pecora brought out that of the United's eleven directors, three—Harold Stanley, George Whitney, and Edward Hopkins—were Morgan partners, and two were members of Bonbright & Company.

"How many are a quorum of directors?"

"Four."

"How many stockholders?"

"Twenty five per cent."

Sen. Glass Fumed Senator Glass fumed over the tactics of Ferdinand Pecora. The tart Virginia demanded, to the excitement of the crowded audience, to know the exact course of the inquiry. He raised questions about Pecora's retention as counsel, while silence fell on the huge hearing hall.

Pecora returned in kind, drawing applause with a veiled hint that his resignation could be had if the committee asked.

Through Howard, he had developed that the United Corporation received from Morgan stocks in various utilities concerns in the 29 boom days at $12,000,000 less than their market value, and that the outfit banking house had in consideration obtained a dominance over affairs of the United Corporation.

Howard testified that on the options granted Morgan for purchase of United stock the price set for the million units at a dollar a piece was to allow purchase of the stock for 71-2.

Morgan Got Option Less than a month later, Howard said, the stock sold for from 58 1-2 to 58 1-2.

Under the transaction January 11, 1929, Morgan got the $1,000,000 options and 400,000 shares of common stock for $10,000,000, allocating 22 1-2 to the common stock and $1 to the options.

The stock opened January 23, at a price of $99, together with an option for each share.

The Glass episode threw the room into an uproar when the Senator demanded to "know what this is all about."

"This member is entitled to know some of the things dealt with in this examination," he said, his voice rising.

"I don't know what this is all about," he snapped, looking at Pecora.

"Has there been any intimation of any violation of state or federal law?" he questioned looking about.

Without this question being gone into, it was then that Mr. Glass brought up retention of the counsel.

MEMORIAL DAY

DIXON MEMORIAL ASSN.

The 30th day of May, 1868 was designated as the first Memorial Day for the purpose of strewing with flowers or otherwise decorating the graves of comrades who died in defense of their country during the late rebellion, and the Dixon Memorial Association has prescribed a form of ceremony and arranged such fitting services and testimonials of respect as the circumstances have permitted to properly remember our soldier dead who are interred in Oakwood cemetery and cemeteries adjacent to Dixon.

We are associated for the purpose of preserving and strengthening those kind and fraternal feelings which have bound together the soldiers, sailors and marines who united to preserve our nation.

What can aid more to assure this result than by cherishing tenderly the memory of our heroic dead, who made their breasts a barricade between our country and its foes?

We should guard their graves with sacred vigilance. All that the consecrated wealth and taste of the nation can add to their adornment and security is but a fitting tribute to the memory of our slain defenders.

Let no wanton foot tread rudely on such hallowed grounds. Let pleasant paths invite the coming and going of reverent visitors and fond mourners. Let no vandalism of avarice or neglect, no ravages of time, testify to the present or to the coming generations that we have forgotten, as a people, the cost of a free and undivided republic.

If other eyes grow dull and other hands slack, and other hearts grow old in the solemn trust, ours shall keep it well as long as the light and warmth of life remain with us. Let us then, at this appointed time, gather around their sacred remains and garland the pastless mounds above them with choicest flowers of springtime; let us place over them the dear old flag they saved from dishonor; let us in this solemn presence renew our allegiance to our nation. It is the purpose of the Dixon Memorial Association to carry out these purposes with the hope that it will be kept up from year to year, while a survivor of a war remains to honor the memory of all departed comrades, and we earnestly desire the public to lend its friendly aid in the proper observance of Memorial Day, and join with us in all of the ceremonies.

Last Night's Rain Swelled The River Rock River continued to threaten a flood condition locally today, due to the heavy downpour of rain throughout last night. At the U. S. Army's hydro plant at Ottawa, a rise of seven-tenths of a foot from 4 o'clock this morning until noon was recorded and at a late hour this afternoon, the stage was still increasing.

The north side park system was further threatened with flood today when the high water covered much of the improvement and was only a few inches from entering the tennis courts in front of the high school. A great deal more of the new park property was inundated this afternoon with no immediate prospect of a sudden drop in the water.

Financiers Study Testimony Given Washington, May 26—(AP)—J. P. Morgan and his aides are giving every indication that news and stenographic reports of their testimony receive careful scrutiny by them between Senate Banking committee sessions.

Several times George Whitney, a partner — has referred back to previous testimony to correct or amplify. And then the elder Morgan himself waited eagerly for over two hours to get into the record an explanation of why he paid taxes in England in 1931 and 1932, though reporting no taxable income in the United States.

He had his answer ready when he entered the committee room early in the morning and held it mostly in his hand — until his request for a hearing was granted.

The quality of the sleep we enjoy is more important than the quantity; slumber disturbed by dreams is a sign that the brain is still active.

He said he would later make it public with the man's letter refusing participation in a stock issue.

Knows One Man Who Turned Down Offer Washington, May 26—(AP)—Ferdinand Pecora, counsel for the committee investigating the Morgan banking house, said today he had the name of "one man" who turned down an offer to get on Morgan's select customer list for an "ethical reason."

He said he would later make it public with the man's letter refusing participation in a stock issue.

CHICAGO FACES BAD SITUATION STRIKE SPREADS

Unexplained Action Of City Workers Is Extended Today

Chicago, May 26—(AP)—Despite offers, appeals and threats by city and county officials the strike of unionized city employees spread a bit further today as a business agent called eight hoisting engineers from work on the Chicago Avenue tunnel.

City trucks were tied up Monday with the walkout of 275 chauffeurs and 1,200 street laborers joined the idle group yesterday. On the eve of the Century of Progress formal opening the city was seriously hampered in its efforts to clean up, remove garbage and ashes and keep water mains in repair.

In no case have the strikers announced the reason for their walkout. City officials assume that their attack on the allegedly gangster-controlled faction of the Chicago Teamsters Union brought the strike in retaliation.

When the engineers quit today 60 laborers underground were forced to stop.

At another shaft a timekeeper asked the agent for his permit to enter and when he failed to show one, drove him away with a crowbar.

ENROLLMENT IN FOREST CAMPS NEAR COMPLETE

Will Surpass Mobilization For War With Spain

Baltimore, May 26—(AP)—The completion of the enrollment for the Civilian's Reformation Corps within the next fortnight will surpass the full mobilization of the military personnel of the country for the Spanish-American War.

The comparison of the present day army for the unemployed youth to the nation's force in the War with Spain in 1898 was made today by officers of the Forest Camps Area headquarters here.

The task of procuring, processing and equipping the forest army of 274,000 unemployed men between 18 and 25 years is to be finished within two weeks.

With the aid of the regular army, the work of conditioning the recruits is to be finished by July 1.

Army officers said War Department records show 223,235 volunteers enlisted for the Spanish-American War, approximately half of which were members of organized militia regiments. The volunteers augmented a regular force of 57,323 men.

Cement Purchase Bill Is Signed

Springfield, Ill. May 26—(AP)—With Governor Horner's signature on the Sennett bill, the state today was given immediate authority to purchase its supplies of cement on the open market.

As he signed the bill, Horner said that the negotiations already were under way with several cement companies and that he hoped an agreement could be reached soon.

The new law permits the state, when bids have been rejected, to purchase its supplies on the open market at a price not more than 90 per cent of the lowest bid rejected. The law is to be effective during 1933 only and Horner said it would be used in the state's effort to reach a satisfactory price for the 3,300,000 barrels of cement needed for road construction.

Girl Scout Movement Active Here

Of all the agencies for social betterment, perhaps none has greater public appeal than those which deal with our young people. One of the most active of these in Dixon is the Girl Scout movement. In order that the community may be better informed as to Girl Scout activities in Dixon, a group of newspaper articles is being prepared which will doubtless be interesting and informative and which this is the first. Others will appear later.

About two hundred twenty-five people are engaged in Girl Scout work in Dixon. Of these one hundred twenty-five are Girl Scouts, who must be ten years old; seventy-five are Brownies, who must be at least seven to be entitled to membership. The remainder are leaders and the Girl Scout Council which corresponds to a board of directors.

Meetings occur each week during the winter, the seasons activity culminating in a Scout Camp in the summer. This camp is scientifically conducted by a trained worker, the girls being taught many useful and interesting things.

At the end of the season but before camp, is held the Court of Awards. At this time girls are given badges for completing certain accomplishments. This is a very beautiful ceremony and is open to the public. This year it will occur May 31st at 7:30 in the South Central School. About 150 badges will be awarded. The following list of awards shows how varied and useful are the activities of the Girl Scouts. Girls will receive the following badges: artist, life saver, handy woman, musician, scribe, (meaning being familiar with outstanding authors), cook, pathfinder, pioneer, craftsman, child nurse, dress maker, junior citizen, bird finder, laundress, housekeeper, hostess, home nurse and athlete.

1-4 teaspoon salt
Mix ingredients and add to meat. When ready to serve remove meat and cooked vegetables and make gravy by mixing 4 tablespoons butter with 6 tablespoons of browned flour and adding to stock. Cook until thick and creamy. Arrange meat on serving platter, surround with vegetables and serve gravy in bowl.

Chilled Prunes
2 cups prunes
4 cups water
1-3 cup sugar
1 tablespoon lemon juice
Thoroughly wash prunes, add water. Cover and soak overnight. In the morning simmer (cook very, very slowly) for 1-2 hours. Add sugar and lemon juice and cook 3 minutes. Cool and chill.

Serve for breakfast, luncheon or supper.

Dried apricots, prunes and peaches contain much nourishment, are very inexpensive and can be used several times during the week. They contain natural sweet which is brought out by the slow cooking, so that little sugar is required.

Jellied tomato juice is a delicious appetizer to serve for the spring luncheon or dinner.

Legion Aux. Had Regular Meeting

The American Legion Auxiliary met in Legion Hall Wednesday afternoon. With a good attendance. Child welfare chairman, Mrs. Lillian Stevens, reported relief work done in the amount of $28.00 during the month of May. An invitation from the Elks Club to assist with the services on Flag Day, June 14 at Market Square, was read and accepted. Mrs. Minnie Miller, president, urged all Auxiliary members to take part in these services, and also to assist with Memorial Day services Tuesday forenoon. Auxiliary members are requested to help make bouquets and wreaths for Memorial Day, at the Court House Monday afternoon at 2:30.

A communication was read in regard to the 13th district convention to be held at Galena, July 3 and 4. Galena Post and Auxiliary are planning a wonderful program of entertainment for all visitors at their convention.

Preparations for Poppy Day were completed by the Auxiliary ladies. A large corps of volunteer workers are ready, to take the streets early tomorrow morning with the city's share of the memorial poppies. Women from other organizations have offered their help to the Auxiliary and are enrolled on the poppy squads. School girls will distribute poppies by the side of grethaired ponies whose sons fought and died among the poppies of France. The women of Dixon will be united in a patriotic effort as they were in the World War days. The Auxiliary will distribute its poppies on a voluntary contribution basis. Poppies will be given in return for contributions of any size the individual is able to make. None of the workers will receive any compensation for her work. All contributions will be used for the relief and rehabilitation of disabled veterans and their families.

Child Labor Amendment Endorsed by Ill. Women Voters

Under the numbers H. J. R. 46, introduced by Representative W. O. Edwards (Dem.) and S. J. R. 24, introduced by N. M. Mason (R.), a resolution to ratify the federal child labor amendment is now pending in the General Assembly and is endorsed by the Illinois League of Women Voters. "For three reasons its immediate passage is imperative," says Mrs. Louis Brownlow, Chairman of the League's Department of Child Welfare.

"(1) A protection able to reach across state and national boundaries alone can protect the conscientious employer of adult labor in competitive business, secure employment opportunities for adults where children are now used, and protect the children from commercial exploitation in gainful occupations in local jurisdictions which do not have a standard of child labor legislation as high as Illinois. (There are no state boundaries in business competition, in the labor market supply, nor in the employment of children in neighboring cranberry-bog states like Pennsylvania, New York and New Jersey.)

"(2) Ratification while it will not itself regulate child labor, will enable Congress to legislate for a national minimum age, to protect the more scrupulous states like Illinois, from less scrupulous states with lower standards, and assure the children living elsewhere who may later become citizens of Illinois, a fair deal comparable to that now afforded to our children under our state laws.

"(3) Two to five unfavorable decisions of the U. S. Supreme Court have apparently cut off the possibility of such protection without resort to constitutional amendment. Our forefathers did not foresee the development of steam and electric power, inter-state commerce on a large competitive scale, nor the forcing into the modern factory with its immense social and industrial hazards, or thousands of our children.

"The time is ripe. During the current biennium five states have ratified. The amendment is now pending in nine other states. The new General Assembly is anxious to be of service in the labor field. The labor people are supporting the amendment. An intelligent labor department administration in Washington is ready to give a competent enforcement and to draft a practicable federal bill. Ratification by one large industrial state should start a landslide for the federal child labor amendment."

Tea Honors Three Prospective Brides

June is the month of brides and each year the month is about the same. For Cupid takes no cognizance of depression, weather or "whatever," as Rubie Appleberry says, on the radio. One of the most attractive prospective brides is Miss Alice Powell whose engagement to Wayne Crags of Havana, was announced several weeks ago. Miss Powell has since been the recipient of many pre-nuptial courtesies.

On Saturday afternoon Miss Clara Gwen Bardwell, who is a senior at Rockford College, is entertaining with a simple spring tea at the home of her mother, Mrs. H. H. Bardwell, on Second street, in honor of Miss Powell and in honor of two Rockford College girls who are prospective brides, Miss Charlotte Alvison of Omaha, Neb., who is to wed William Howard and Miss Nancy Starr of Rockford who is to become the bride of Dr. Harry Anderson.

While all the appointments for the tea will be simple they will, nevertheless, be very pretty, with all the fragrance and beauty of spring flowers.

There will be present about twenty-five guests.

In the receiving line will be H. U. Bardwell, Miss Clara Gwen Bardwell, Miss Alice Powell, Miss Nancy Starr and Miss Charlotte Alvison.

Mrs. George B. Shaw will preside at the tea table, with Mrs. Dorothy Jane McCoy and Mrs. A. J. Jenks of Chicago, pouring. Miss Georgiana Shaw will assist.

And So-Strawberries Are Good For Us

Scientists have been studying and investigating the food properties of strawberries quite thoroughly and extensively during the past few years with the result that we may consume this luscious fruit to our hearts content, safe in the assurance that something we like to eat is actually good for us.

According to the reports of these investigations, strawberries are a remarkably good mineral substitute for oranges. Although slightly lower in lime, they are four times higher in iron content per unit of weight than oranges. The lime content is of comparatively little importance since milk is the cheapest source of this mineral constituent. It takes ten large oranges to furnish the same amount of lime or calcium found in one quart of milk.

Canned Berries Wholesome

In many respects, strawberries and oranges parallel each other in food values. Strawberries are richer in protein than oranges, but a pound of berries which is about a quart of purchased, supplies approximately the same number of total calories as a pound of oranges.

Canned strawberries are so widely used that they also have come under the experimental eye. Scientific research has discovered that commercially canned and home-canned berries by the hot pack or pressure methods lose practically no vitamin C through the canning process. Berries canned by the open-kettle method do lose their vitamin C content since vitamin C is primarily destroyed by air is present, but in the absence of air has little effect. This explains why commercially canned berries retain vitamin C.

Boost Other Foods' Value

There is also good reason to believe that berries like the other fruits actually help the body to make use of other elements in the diet. They are not only valuable in themselves, but they increase the value of accompanying foods in daily menus.

Naturally, if you want to use strawberries as a substitute for oranges and gain the same effect, the berries must be perfectly ripe and not deluged with sugar. Keep in mind, too, that oranges have been found experimentally to be very effective in reducing body acidity while we are still in the dark regarding strawberries on this point.

58th Anniversary Quietly Observed

Judge and Mrs. J. W. Watts, residents of Dixon for a long time, quietly observed their fifty-eighth wedding anniversary Thursday at their home 605 N. Ottawa avenue. There was no celebration.

On May 25th, 1875, Attorney Watts, a student at the law school of the University of Michigan and Miss Mary Alice Williams, of Ogle county, were married by the pastor of the Washington Grove church, in Ogle county.

The next year Attorney Watts graduated and started to practice law in Ashton. A daughter, now Mrs. Clara Burel, was born, and shortly after Attorney and Mrs. Watts and daughter moved to Dixon where they have since resided.

Judge Watts who has been Master-in-Chancery of Lee County for the past twelve years, is 84 years old and is in perfect health. Mrs. Watts is also enjoying good health. For fifteen years Judge Watts was president of the North Dixon high school board.

Attorney Watts from 1889 until 1909 was dean of the Northern Illinois Law School affiliated with the Dixon College. Several hundred law students graduated from this school under Attorney Watts, some of them becoming famous, including Lawrence DeGreeff, Justice of the Iowa Supreme Court and Oscar E. Carlstrom, former attorney general of Illinois.

Many Dixon friends unite in extending best wishes to Judge and Mrs. Watts for continued health and happiness. Their daughter,

CINE-MODES ON WITH THE NEW!

Smart Novelties Are Hollywood's Weakness

By NEA Service

HOLLYWOOD—Novelty, whether it is a new color combination, a new fabric or a new variation of the mode, always is at a premium here.

Tangerine and brown strappings on a white boucle suit which Betty Furness wears, is a good example. The sleeves are knit to form the shoulders and back and the strappings cross to make a yoke with the round white neckline above them. Deep cuffs and hipbands of the colors add zest.

Madge Evans, riding along Beverly Hills bridal path with Tom Gallery, presented a red-velvet-black picture that was charming. Boots, coat, and hat were black, breeches, silk shirt and gloves were white and four-in-hand tie the scarf.

Ann Harding in Blue

Ann Harding, playing golf at the Lakeside Country Club with Leslie Howard, wore a stunning very pale blue ensemble. The box-pleated skirt of flannel, and lacy blue knit blouse, were topped by a swaggar coat with deep pleat down the back and four patch pockets.

Eleanor Holm, lunching in the Warner-Frost National cafe with Dick Powell, wore a scarlet cape dress with short, puffed sleeves of black crepe satin and a tiny black crepe turban.

A Real Bathing Beauty

Elan Harlow, lounging around the El Mirador swimming pool at Palm Springs, in a white rubberized fabric bathing suit, backless and short, and a handsome beach cape and wide brimmed hat of yellow turkish toweling.

Joan Bennett, lounging with her husband, Gene Markey, in front of their Malibu Beach home, wore white cotton beach pajamas.

Betty Furness

Mrs. Bunnell who is prominent in patriotic work, resides with them.

Good Program Dorcas Society Meeting

The Dorcas Society of the Congregational church held an interesting session Thursday afternoon. The meeting opened with several songs after which the devotions were led by Miss Edna Nowell. Song "Ivory Palaces"
Reading, "Growing Old Together"
"Theo Discovers a Better Way"
Singing of choruses:
"Oil in My Lamp"
"Gladness in My Heart"
Reading, "Ma and Her Auto Ride"
"The Latest Fad"
"Little Boy Blue"

A social hour followed at which time Mesdames Duffey and Heckman served light refreshments.

Crusaders' Class Meeting on Friday

The Crusader's Sunday school class of the Brethren church had their regular monthly social in the church parlors last night. The attendance was smaller than usual but this did not hinder the class from having a general good time. A tasty picnic supper was enjoyed by the class, after which a social time was enjoyed. Edward Myers, the teacher was not permitted to be present on account of being ill. Plans were talked over for enlarging the class and an effort will be made to have all former members of the class present on homecoming day, June 18, Lloyd Hook, president of the class was present with his usual interest and enthusiasm in building up the class. The happy party separated for their homes after a late hour.

Urge Veterans to Honor Fallen Comrades By Wearing Poppy

All World War veterans of Dixon were urged to pay honor to their fallen comrades by wearing a memorial Poppy on Poppy Day, Saturday, May 27, in a message issued today by Clarence Shaver, Commander of Dixon Post No. 12 of the American Legion. Commander Shaver declared that the wearing of the poppy is the individual way to show remembrance for the war dead and devotion to the ideals for which they gave their lives. The message stated:

"On Saturday, May 27, America will pay its annual tribute to the men who gave their lives in defense of the country in 1917 and 1918 by wearing the memorial poppy. I am sure that every World War veteran and every other patriotic citizen of Dixon will wear this token of remembrance on that day. Wearing the poppy means that we have not forgotten our comrades who fell among the poppies of France and that we are carrying on for America in their spirit.

"The poppies will be offered on the streets here by the women of the American Legion Auxiliary, our wives, mothers, sisters and daughters. They have volunteered for this work, giving their services without thought of personal gain. Disabled veterans have made the poppies which they will distribute, and the contributions they will receive will go entirely to the relief of needy veterans and veterans' families. Be

Mrs. Sheaffer Entertains Palmyra Aid

The Palmyra Mutual Aid Society held its last meeting Wednesday at the spacious home of Mrs. John Sheaffer. At noon a bounteous dinner was served to twenty-three members, eight visitors and several children. The hostess pleased the palates of all by a tempting dish of chicken and noodles.

After dinner the President called the meeting to order and all joined in singing, "We're Marching to Zion." Mrs. Georgia Beede then read the Scripture lesson. The reports of the Secretary and Treasurer were read and approved. Members were reminded of the bake sale to be held June 3rd in the Warner Bros. window on Galena avenue, instead of the location previously mentioned. Members are asked to bring their offerings in early if possible. Roll call was responded to and the collection taken. Mrs. Anna Buhler and Mrs. Kathryn LeFevre each in turn gave a reading which was enjoyed. Mrs. Sheaffer also gave an interesting clipping.

Must Respect Law, And Rights of Others

When the "liberty" movement first started in honor of our children some years ago, many of us sat back and said, "We shall reserve our decision until this batch of babies grows up. Like war and scarlet fever the real results cannot be computed for some fifteen years or so to come."

And now we are getting results. I mean real results. The antics of the well-known generation, post-war, the silly flapper and the devilish young man, was something different. True, it was a "liberty" movement, too, but one of their own. It was a deliberate and direct revolt against the narrow and grim Victorian authority for which few people could blame them.

The matter I refer to here is different. I am speaking of the cult that started with Freud, that canonized personal freedom, and put a curse on authority. It preached to parents the creed that babies in the cradle should then and thereafter be allowed to do as they please in order to prevent inhibitions and inferiority.

Extremes Are Dangerous

Now, those writers like myself, who saw the dangers of the two extremes, over-nagging, and too much strictness against its opposite, liberty that was license, have been in a difficult position. For parents are too likely to use either one method or the other, and we had to stand between.

Several times I have used the simile of the circle. The child should be allowed to develop on his own, but inside a circle over which he must not dare to step. The circle must be big enough so that he won't feel like a calf tied to a tree, but that circle MUST BE THERE!

Now today I not only wish to emphasize that circle again but I am going to print some big words

BUSINESS CONTROL IN NEW FORM

To get a good understanding of the new relationship between business and government, all you have to do is contrast the attitude of President Franklin D. Roosevelt with that of his distinguished predecessor, T. R.

Each took office at a time when the public was deeply dissatisfied with the way in which social values were being ignored by the industrial and financial community. In each case the ordinary man felt that some realignment was necessary, although there was not in either case any general agreement on what should be done. And, in each case, there was a radical fringe eager to move along paths which might be theoretically admirable but were pretty likely to be disastrous in practice.

Theodore Roosevelt insisted that what had happened in business and industry was a direct concern of the government. He saw that society in self-protection must do something to restrain the profit motive, and the antitrust laws came into his hands as the most effective weapon.

There was little talk then of making the government a partner in industry—although it is interesting to remember that T. R. was not afraid to threaten the anthracite coal barons with direct government intervention. It was his theory that the government could do all that was needed by exercising its supervision from the outside. Business was to be allowed to go its own way, but Uncle Sam was to be alert in the background with a big stick ready to rap any head that got too far out of line.

That theory was followed without important changes up to this year; but by the spring of 1933 it had become painfully evident that more than that was needed. Simple restraint was not enough. Government must not be content to keep industry from doing certain things; it must be ready to persuade or force industry to do things. Its control must be positive rather than negative.

This, at any rate, seems to be the second Rooseveltian philosophy, as embodied in the legislation which is now taking shape. It is in marked contrast to the creed of the first Roosevelt; but it is worth noticing that it is a perfectly logical development from it. The contrast is more apparent than real. Once government has begun to exercise supervision over private business it cannot turn back.

WEAR THEIR FLOWER AND REAWAKEN THEIR SPIRIT

To America, now going forward in a great drive against the economic enemies which have invaded the country, comes a message from the men who fifteen years ago were giving their lives in defense of the country against an armed enemy. It comes in the form of the little red poppy that we will all be asked to wear on Poppy Day, May 27. It tells us to serve and sacrifice for our country now with the same patriotic spirit that those men served and died among the poppies in France in 1917 and 1918.

The poppy is a symbol of remembrance for the World War dead. Poppies growing on every coat on Poppy Day will show that we still remember and honor the supreme sacrifice our war dead made for America. A country which remembers deeds such as theirs cannot be indifferent to present calls for patriotic service. As long as the memory of our heroes is kept bright, America can be confident that heroic service will come from its citizens in every hour of need.

The women of the American Legion Auxiliary, who will bring us the poppies on Poppy Day, are carrying out a very valuable work for the country. With their memorial flowers they are helping keep alive a memory more precious than vast material riches—the memory of men who were willing to die that America might live in freedom and happiness. With the poppy contributions, they are helping carry on for the disabled veterans and fatherless families. With the poppy they are calling to us to carry on for America in the spirit of those heroic men the flower commemorates. Every American who is a true American should show his response by wearing a poppy on Poppy Day.

I don't believe the difficulty has been so much that Congress hasn't contained men of excellent ability as that Congress hasn't known how to use the ability of the good men it has had.—Mrs. Helen Taft Manning, daughter of William Howard Taft.

It would be comparatively easy to dynamite the industrial system; it requires long and rigid discipline of training and of creative thinking to bring it into the service of human needs.—Rexford G. Tugwell, assistant secretary of agriculture.

Individualism is still a vital force in American life today. But its vitality is in the nature of a ceremonial activity, not of an underlying basis for the motivation of government.—William Wallace, historian.

It is time that from official quarters our people were awakened to the rapidity with which our national defenses are crumbling.—Louis Johnson, national commander of the American Legion.

Hitler is a child of the Versailles treaty.—Senator William E. Borah.

The footprints that the Tinies saw upon the sand filled them with awe. "I have never seen such big ones," said wee Duncy. "This is sad."

"Somebody took the girls away and gosh knows where they are today. It is certain something has happened. Think of what a scare they've had!"

Then Scouty said, "Don't stand and mope. We'll search. That is our only hope. My hunch is that a giant left those footprints on the sand."

"Who knows? He may live right nearby. To find his home we all will try. Then, if the girls are captives, we will try to lend a hand."

"A giant doesn't frighten me," said Coppy. "Some are very kind, you see. However, we will be very careful. Come, lads, let's be on our way."

"The footprints lead back, and through these trees and we can follow them with ease. If this were not so serious, 'twould all be just like play."

For quite a time they trailed along. Then Coppy said, "There's something wrong. Here is where the footprints end, but there is not a soul in sight."

"You're wrong," cried Windy. "Way up here they start again, so have no fear. I guess the giant took long steps and ran with all his might."

They traveled for an hour or so. Then Duncy stopped and very loudly shouted, "Oh, what is that just ahead of us? That's where the footprints stop."

"Why, that's a great big trunk you see. Say, this is strange as it can be! I wonder what is in the big trunk. Let's open up the top."

They gathered around the big trunk and then wee Scouty said, "We're struck again. There is no lock on this old trunk and yet the lid's down tight."

"Hey, wait," cried Windy. "Let me try to pull the stubborn lid up high." But he just couldn't budge it, though he jerked with all his might.

(Duncy accidentally opens the trunk in the next story.)

BEAM OF LIGHT FROM DISTANT STAR WILL THROW SWITCH, OPENING CHICAGO'S FAIR

By NEA Service—

Chicago, May 26 — A faint ray of starlight that has been traveling through 240 trillion miles of space at a speed of 186,000 miles a second, since it left the distant star Arcturus 40 years ago will turn on the lights that will illuminate Chicago's Century of Progress Exposition on its opening night, tomorrow.

Scientists have completed their plans for this bit of man-made magic by which the light that left the star during Chicago's previous world fair in 1893 will be trapped and used to open the 1933 exposition.

Powerful telescopes will be trained on the star at four widely-scattered observatories, chosen because of their location to guard against the possibility of failure due to cloudy weather. These are the Harvard observatory at Cambridge, Mass.; the Yerkes observatory at Williams Bay, Wis.; the University of Illinois observatory at Urbana, and the University of Pittsburgh observatory at Allegheny, Pa.

RAY MAGNIFIED—

The faint ray of light picked up by each of these telescopes will be magnified by their powerful lenses and the beam trained on a photo-electric cell or "electric eye," which will convert the light into electrical impulses. These impulses will then be amplified many times and transmitted by wire to Chicago to throw the switch that will turn on the giant searchlight atop the Hall of Science.

The great beam of the searchlight will then sweep the exposition grounds, being directed on the main buildings of the fair. Photo-electric cells on each of these buildings will pick up the searchlight's rays and, in turn, switch on the lights that will illuminate them.

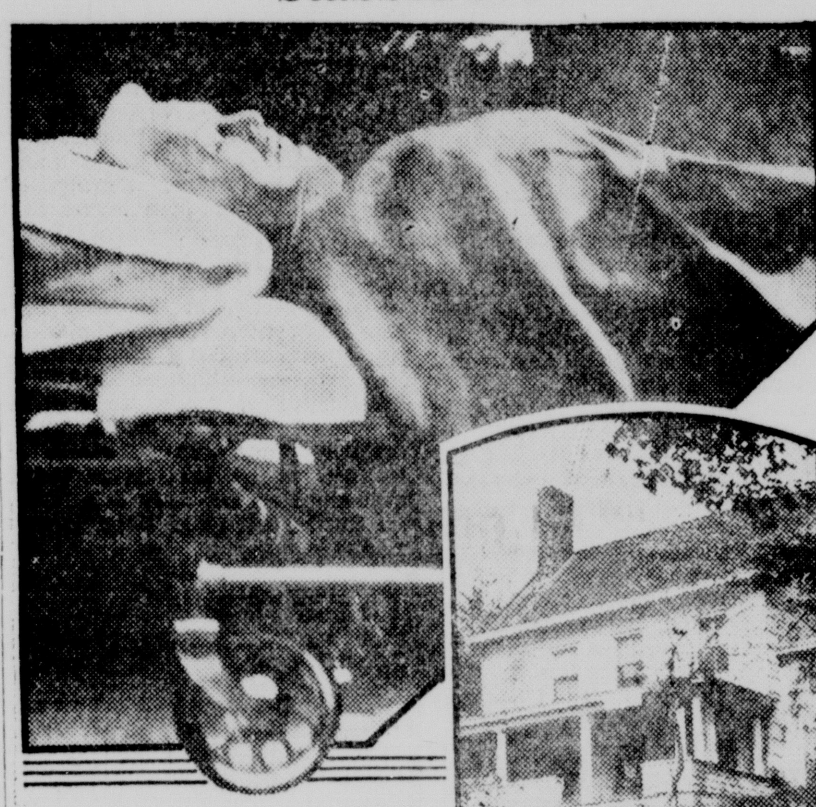

The idea of capturing a beam of light that originated during Chicago's previous world fair and

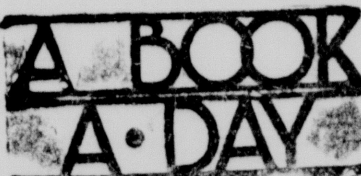

This drawing shows how light from the distant star Arcturus will be trapped at four observatories and used to turn on the lights at Chicago's world fair. Telescopes will train the beam of starlight on photo-electric cells which will convert the light into electrical impulses. These will be transmitted to Chicago by wire to turn on the exposition's giant searchlight, shown at the upper left, and the searchlight's rays will turn on the lights in the main buildings.

After Fugitive Banker Harriman Stabbed Self

Frustrated in an attempt to end his life after detectives traced him to his hiding place in an obscure Long Island hotel, Joseph W. Harriman, indicted New York banker, is shown above as he was being placed in an ambulance after stabbing himself in the chest and neck with a butcher knife. At the right is the Old Orchard Inn, Roslyn, L. I., where Harriman took refuge after vanishing from a Manhattan sanitarium. It was in the room just above the front porch entrance that he tried to end his life. His wounds were not serious.

More than 20 years ago Norman Angell wrote a book explaining that no nation could possibly gain anything by modern warfare. It was immediately derided as a visionary incompetent by his "betters" in every land; and his "betters" then got the world into a new war and proved that everything he had told them was the literal truth.

Now he has written a new book, "From Chaos to Control," and it is a book which is very much worth reading in these troubled times.

In it he suggests that our chief trouble today is the failure of organized education to prepare modern democracies for the kind of complex, specialized world in which we are now living.

Our great problem now, he says, is not to find a way out of economic disaster, but to get that way accepted by the ordinary man once it is found.

As an example, he remarks that every reputable economist has long insisted that there can be no recovery until reparations and war debts are forgotten and tariff walls are lowered. The experts agree, in other words, about what our first steps must be—but what we'll follow their advice.

Eventually, he says, we must learn to look on political and economic problems as objectively as we now look on medical problems. If a plague threatens, we do just what our doctors tell us to do, realizing that we cannot save ourselves otherwise. But when economic disaster comes we will not listen to our own prejudices. As a result, our civilization is on the very edge of an abyss.

A THOUGHT FOR TODAY

Hitherto have ye asked nothing in my name; ask and ye shall receive, that your joy may be full.—St. John, 1:24.

SINCERITY

By Dr. Joseph Fort Newton

"At least we can be sincere," a lady said to me the other day. As if it were as easy as sewing on a button, or hitting a nail on the head, or opening a sardine-can!

To be sincere is one of the hardest things required of us, even when we try for it. It asks for a self-knowledge at which few of us arrive or want to arrive, because it involves a lot of tedious and unpleasant facts which we prefer to avoid.

A man rides his logic over our pet ideas, and we are angry. Is it because we are so zealous for the truth, or because our pride of opinion has been hurt? Much of our indignation is only offended egotism. The human heart may not be desperately wicked, but it is awfully deceitful. Often we think we are moved by one motive, but we may be moved by a motive of an entirely different sort, or by a muddy mixture of motives.

The search for truth is a noble adventure, but it is hard to find it. Happy are we, if, after the longest life, we have found amid the mass of error a few gems of truth, least of all the pearl of great price. The heart of man is such a bundle of fixed ideas, such a jumble of vanities, that it is a wonder we ever find the freedom of the truth. How often we reject it because it is not what we want it to be!

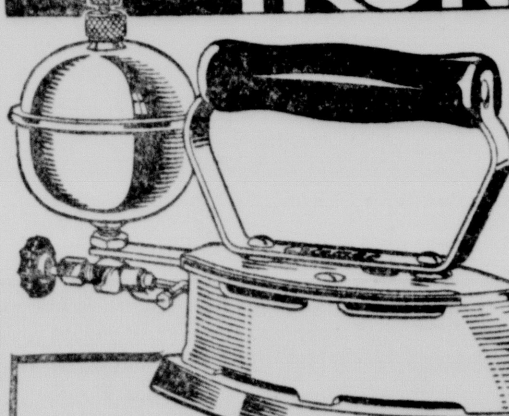

Years ago there was a man in my church who disliked me. He even said that my sermons were poor stuff and empty of thought—the wretch! After a year or two I began to dislike even the cut of his jib. Because, I said, he was a trouble-maker; but that was not the root reason. In those days I was young enough to think I could preach, and he had wounded my vanity. My sermons had nothing to do with his dislike; he thought I had kept him out of an office.

Is the case hopeless, then? No, we incurably insincere in spite of our efforts to be sincere? No, but we may ask God to search our tricky hearts, as with a white flame, and burn up every rag of vanity and cast out the last lie. Our seeming hopelessness is the most hopeful thing about us. Our final joy will be to stand revealed in the blaze of unutterable truth and revel in our want of concealment forever.

GOOD THOUGHTS

Let never day nor light unhalloved pass.
But still remember what the Lord hath done.
—Shakespeare

I will sing of the mercies of the Lord forever; with my mouth will I make known thy faithfulness to all generations. For I have said, Mercy shall be built up forever; thy faithfulness shalt thou establish in the very heavens.
—Salm 89

Many during the Christian era have realized in greater or less degree the fact of God's goodness. The Pilgrim Fathers are an example of this. It is unquestionable that their faith in the presence of God with them, in His power to sustain and protect them, in His unfailing goodness and love, enabled them in numerous instances to meet and rise superior to material conditions of a most trying nature.
—The Christian Science Sentinel

From David learn to give thanks in everything. Every furrow in the book of Psalms is sown with the seeds of thanksgiving.
—Jeremy Taylor

Keep your eyes open to your service. Keep your eyes open to your mercies. The man who forgets to be thankful has fallen asleep in life.
—Robert Louis Stevenson

What I have done is worthy of nothing but silence and forgetfulness, but what God has done for me is worthy of everlasting and thankful memory.

Dr. Barnum was pastor of the First church of Rogers Park in Chicago and is a high class preacher. His coming to help Dr. Stansell will be the fifth superintendent who has preached in Dixon since January. It is thought that this is the only case in Methodism in which all the District Superintendents in turn filled the pulpit of a pastor who was ill.

The church school will convene at 9:45. All Methodists in the community are urged to support our school and any others are invited.

On its cessation the entire population made a vow to perform the passion play of our Lord every tenth year out of gratitude and as a means of religious instruction.

The historic play is produced in modified form in many places today. A truly wonderful reproduction in beautiful new motion pictures will come to Dixon for this one evening and all are urged to enjoy it. There will be an offering.

BRITISH ARMS POLICY GIVEN COMMONS TODAY

Foreign Secretary's Address Endorses U. S. Policies

London, May 26.—(AP)—The new American policy of cooperation with other nations to avert any threat of war was hailed as an important step today by Sir John Simon, Foreign Secretary.

Sir John, speaking in the House of Commons, asserted the new American doctrine, as explained by Norman H. Davis, Roosevelt's new American Ambassador-at-Large, at the Geneva disarmament conference, amounted to abandonment of the idea of "standing with folded arms as a mere spectator from afar of struggles between two other states, one of which was in the wrong."

The Foreign Secretary enunciated a five-point British disarmament policy:

1. Cordial response to President Roosevelt's peace message.

2. Because of immense arms reductions already made, Great Britain cannot go further without a general agreement.

3. Britain recognizes the validity of the concern which lies behind demands of certain states for security.

4. Britain is ready, with the United States, to join in world consultation to promote security.

5. Britain considers restoration of confidence and elimination of rivalry and suspicion to be a necessary condition for effective disarmament.

PRESBYTERIAN "FUNDAMENTAL" GROUP BEATEN

Fight On Moderator In General Assembly Was Futile

Columbus, O., May 26.—(AP)—Extreme fundamentalists of the Presbyterian church in the U. S. A., defeated in their efforts to choose a Moderator, today went ahead with plans to carry on their fight against what they called "modernist tendencies."

Dr. John McDowell of New York, who said he regarded both extreme fundamentalists and extreme modernists as "trouble makers," was overwhelmingly elected Moderator at the church's 145th General Assembly yesterday.

Dr. McDowell, opposed by the ultra-fundamentalists, polled 691 votes to 120 for the fundamentalist candidate, the Rev. Frank Elder of Cincinnati, and 25 for the Rev. George H. Shea of Quarryville, Pa., a surprise nominee.

After the election, Dr. J. Gresham Machen of Philadelphia, leader of the extreme fundamentalists, said Dr. McDowell, whatever his individual teaching may be, represented the present machinery of the church, which no one can for a moment think to be maintaining the gospel which is set forth in the Bible and in the Confession of Faith.

Although admitting they were in the minority, the members of the so-called Machen group said they would continue their fight on the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions and other units. Dr. McDowell had drawn their criticism as Secretary of the Board of National Missions.

Farm Board Ends Existence Today

Washington, May 26.—(AP)—The Farm Board, created as a major lifesaver for agriculture at outset of the Hoover administration, passes out of existence today.

Its usable functions have been salvaged for merging into the new Farm Credit Administration, run by Henry Morgenthau, Jr., one of President Roosevelt's big units in the "new deal" for the farmer.

The Farm Board's great wheat and cotton price stabilizing adventure is over and Morgenthau has estimated a loss to the government of $350,000,000 of the original $500,000,000 revolving fund.

FEDERAL JUDGE ACQUITTED BY SENATE'S VOTE

U. S. Senator Refused Impeachment Of Louderback

Washington, May 25.—(AP)—Federal Judge Harold Louderback is free to take again the bench in California, acquitted by the Senate of five impeachment counts brought against him.

He said to resign now would be "silly" and like playing into his enemies' hands, even though a majority of the Senate registered disapproval of his conduct in receivership cases by voting against him on the final general charge of conduct "prejudicial to the dignity of the judiciary."

"I feel that it is a vindication," he smilingly told those Senators who crossed the chamber to congratulate him when the verdict had been rendered late yesterday after nine days of trial.

On that last charge, summarizing the other four, the majority that voted "guilty" fell far short of the two-thirds needed to convict. The Senators had debated his case in executive session for two hours before readmitting the public to the balloting. Conviction on a single count would have removed him from office.

Louderback was accused of "tyranny," "favoritism," "unlawful conduct as a judge," "misbehavior in office," and with being a "hindrance to litigants" in the various charges.

He said House conferees probably would be appointed today and he hoped for an early conference with the Senate which passed the Glass Banking reform bill late yesterday.

There is still a dispute between the Senate and House over branch banking. Asked about this, Seagall replied:

"There are no serious conflicts about that bill which can't be worked out."

He said House conferees probably would be appointed today and he hoped for an early conference with the Senate which passed the Glass Banking reform bill late yesterday.

Deposits Insured
The Senate put in provision for immediate insurance of bank deposits under an emergency one year plan, plus a permanent insurance schedule to go into effect after a year. The House passed the bill with an insurance provision regarded easier for small state banks.

The congressional determination to get the bill passed was counted on to get it agreed to this session, even though Roosevelt has not lifted a hand to help it. The Senate passed it late yesterday without even a roll call.

Besides insurance, the bill demands severance of commercial and private banks from investment businesses, and tightens up the Federal Reserve credit machinery in a way counted on to prevent orgies of stock speculation like the big bubble that burst in 1929.

Valuable Service For Fair Visitors

The Continental Casualty Company of Chicago, of which Ed Graybill of Dixon is local representative, has established quarters for a special information and service bureau at 910 So. Michigan Blvd., almost directly across from the main entrance to the Century of Progress Exposition, which opens tomorrow.

These quarters, which are large and spacious and are on the ground floor, contain information on the exposition or on Chicago, telephones, rest rooms, first aid service with trained nurse in attendance, reading and lounging facilities.

They are not open to the general public but application to Mr. Graybill will secure a card of identification which will admit bearer and members of his party, providing them with a well located general meeting place, etc.

MORGAN'S BANK HIGHLY LIQUID AT ALL TIMES

A Report Given Senate Shows Bank Strong For U. S. Bonds

New York, May 26—(AP)—For the first time, Wall Street has been able to study the balance sheet of the mighty House of Morgan and the opportunity has evoked keen discussion.

Morgan, too, lost money in recent years, the figures show.

As spread on the records at Washington, the consolidated statement contained disclosures of widespread interest.

Rigorously maintaining a highly liquid condition during the six years covered by the statement, the firm reports consistently heavy holdings of U. S. government securities.

State and municipal bonds dwindled almost to negligible proportions from 1927 to the end of 1932. Corporate stocks and bonds owned were relatively few, contrary to previous belief in security circles.

The statement discloses that only $13,875,000 of common stocks were held at the end of last year as contrasted with $224,580,000 in government bonds, $33,857,000 in cash or on deposit in other banks and $7,325,000 in call loans. Corporate bonds stood at about $13,000,000 but state and municipal liens amounted to only $6,745,000, having declined from $163,340,000 Dec. 31, 1927.

For Govt. Securities
Even in the halcyon days of 1929, holdings of government securities far exceeded common stocks. The figures stood respectively at $165,667,000 and $64,271,000.

Eagle-eyed statisticians were quick to ascertain that liquidity was more than 78 per cent as of Dec. 31, 1932, counting only cash, call loans and government bonds as liquid. A proportion of liquid assets to deposits of almost 85 per cent is indicated, however, if state, municipal and corporate bonds are counted as liquid, which many authorities consider proper in view of the fact that such securities involve but limited amounts and are all carried at market prices.

No Stated Capital
A sharp drop in deposits was shown from the $562,406,000 on Dec. 31, 1927—the peak for the six year period—to $340,047,000 as of Dec. 31, 1932. The volume of deposits, as well as the total resources of $424,708,000 were generally smaller than the financial community expected.

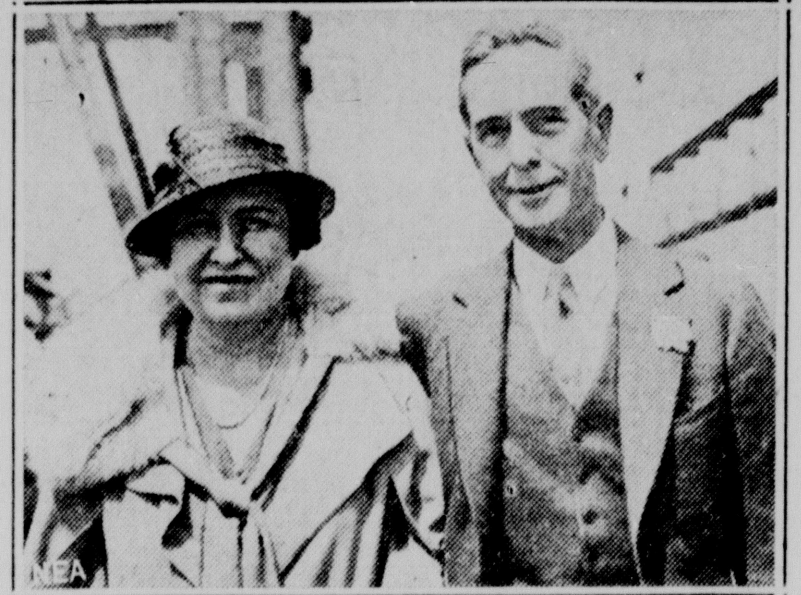

J. P. Morgan & Co. has no stated capital, but carries this item as "net worth." This represents money the partners have in the firm, after losses and expenses.

The net worth stood at $118,604,000 at the end of 1929 but by Dec. 31, 1932 it had been reduced to $53,194,000, indicating losses of more than 55 per cent.

New U. S. Ambassador Leaves for Italy

Sidelights In News In Capital Of United States

By HERBERT PLUMMER

WASHINGTON—When President Roosevelt, then President-elect, announced his intention of retaining the secretariat at the White House during his administration, a great many political observers in Washington were surprised.

The secretariat came into being at the Executive Mansion during Mr. Hoover's term. Before that time Presidents had had just one secretary who attended to everything.

The three-man group that Mr. Hoover surrounded himself with drew some criticism to the effect that the apparent lack of definite division of responsibility among Secretaries Richey, Newton and Joslin made for complications.

President Roosevelt, however, apparently has distributed the duties of his three secretaries—Howe, McIntyre and Early—in such a manner as to avoid criticism on those grounds.

HOWE IS NO. 1—

The President's secretary now is Howe, McIntyre and Early are assistant secretaries.

This fact was brought out very clearly when the bonus marchers of 1933 invaded Washington. Before their arrival no one seemed to know just what Colonel Howe's job was at the White House. He was seldom seen. McIntyre and Early were the ones with whom visitors to the White House came in contact.

But it was Howe who stepped out and took charge of the bonus marchers.

The complaint was heard during the Hoover administration that one secretary didn't always know what the President or the other secretaries were doing on routine matters.

One rather prominent person, for example, complained after a visit to the White House that he had been shunted from one secretary to the other and had left finally without what he wanted.

DIVIDING THE WORK—

Under the plan followed by the Roosevelt secretariat, if, for example, an individual thinks that he has a good reason to see the President, he goes to McIntyre. If it is concerned with the press or public relations in general Early is the man to see.

Howe remains in the background until something of outstanding importance comes up. Then he acts for the President.

Another important factor in the Roosevelt setup is that his three secretaries are all close personal friends and have been for years. And, in addition, each is a close personal friend of Roosevelt himself.

This personal equation evidently has done much for harmony at the White House since March 4.

Historic German castles are being partially restored to serve as hotels for hikers; there are now more than 2000 of these hotels in Germany.

More than 1,340,000 persons in England and Wales were receiving poor relief at the end of 1932, equivalent to 335 persons per 10,000 of the entire population.

It is your duty to carry Accident Insurance. If you use an automobile you can protect your family to the amount of $1,000 for 1 year for $1.25.

Daily Health Talk

CONTROLLING COUGH

There is a bit of common doggerel, the first line of which runs, "It isn't the cough that carries you off."

Nevertheless, while the cough may not "carry you off," sometimes it is the worst and most trying phase of the disease.

Chronic bronchitis, for instance, would be bearable, if it were not for the annoying cough. In tuberculosis coughing may actually endanger the life of the patient, because it prevents him from having proper rest.

It is of value, therefore, in a given number of diseases, to control the cough. This may be accomplished by the use of certain medicines. However, chronic diseases and under certain circumstances, the prolonged use of expectorants, as these drugs are called, is not desirable.

Other methods of controlling coughing must be applied by the patient in person.

A cough is an explosive discharge of air from the respiratory system, made to clear the chest, the trachea and the larynx of accumulated mucus or other substances.

In so far as it serves this end, cough is desirable; but, like so many other reflex actions, it may be carried to an extreme, when it produces more harm than good.

In coughing the respiratory tract is first closed, the chest is compressed, its air content thus being placed under pressure. The larynx is opened quickly and the air issues with an explosive force.

Coughing can therefore be controlled by preventing closure of the larynx and by preventing the explosive opening.

When the irritation in the throat is slight, the larynx may be kept from closing by letting the patient sound a soft, toneless "s".

When the irritation is more severe, the coughing reflex can be counteracted by short, rapid breaths, which do not allow the larynx enough time for closing.

A deep inspiration followed by a holding of the breath will also help in suppressing the urge to cough.

This map shows the location of Dam No. 3 in the Muscle Shoals development with relation to the other units of major construction. Preliminary construction on Dam No. 3 has been stopped by the Roosevelt administration following investigation by the interior department. Dam No. 3, planned for 59-foot height as a feeder for the power plant, would back up the Tennessee River's water as far as Decatur, Ala., 50 miles from the power operation at Wilson Dam.

WHEAT MEN IN CONFERENCE TO ADOPT PROGRAM

Is First Of Similar Conferences Under New Farm Law

Washington, May 26—(AP)—Representatives of wheat growers today urged early application of the voluntary domestic allotment plan and benefit payments to farmers of $231,000,000 this summer.

This was done at the first commodity conference called by George N. Peck, Chief Administrator of the Farm Adjustment Act, to devise methods of increasing farm income.

Washington, May 26—(AP)—Wheat men were called together today by George N. Peck, Chief Administrator of the new farm law, to create a price-improving, production-reducing program for their crop.

Growers, millers, bakers, handlers and others interested in wheat came in. Growers, represented by 16 organizations, already have offered a program calling for use of the voluntary domestic allotment plan. They propose use by August 1 of processing taxes on wheat, and payment by July 15 of bounties to growers who agree to reduce next year's production.

The wheat meeting is the first of a series on each of the seven basic commodities listed in the adjustment act—cotton, corn, hogs, tobacco, rice and dairy products.

The administrators hope to attack cotton next. A survey to determine whether growers favor a plan to cover this year's cotton crop, being made by C. A. Cobb of Atlanta, cotton production administrator, in a hurried trip through the south interviewing planters and others.

DARLING FOOL

By MABEL McELLIOTT

BEGIN HERE TODAY
CHAPTER XXXIV
THE second day out Monnie, bundled in a rug, glanced up from her book to see the tall girl, Corinth Fanaway, walking with her husband. Young Mrs. Fanaway wore the most exquisite of casual costumes of pale faun tweed. The little hat set at precisely the right angle, the big loose gloves and low-heeled shoes were exactly right. The tall girl gave Monnie a nod and then, apparently obeying a sudden impulse, stopped beside her chair.

"Do you know my husband, Miss O'Dare? Oh, I'd forgotten, Harris, this is Miss O'Dare." She gave Monnie a slow, dazzling smile and the younger girl felt her vagrant charm. She had a sweet, high, careless voice and the manner of one with the world at her feet. Monnie felt drawn to her and yet curiously repelled.

"I haven't seen Arthur this morning. Have you?" The words seemed to have some significance which Monnie missed but she colored slightly as she replied. No, she said, she hadn't seen Mr. Mackenzie. Not at luncheon.

"Probably in the bar," supplied Harris Fanaway. "Shall we have a look there?" They drifted on, with a casual nod. Monnie tried to read again but the encounter had left her with a disturbed feeling. It was not envy she felt for Corinth Fanaway—surely not that—but this other girl was so beautiful, so sure of herself. She reminded Monnie in some subtle way of Sandra, although Sandra would have paled to insignificance beside her. Monnie did not want to think of Sandra now. She wanted to look ahead—not backward.

Presently, putting her novel aside, she went to find Miss Anstice. That lady was just waking from her nap.

"Did you have a nice time, my dear?" she asked. "Such a wonderful rest I had. I feel quite refreshed!" Miss Anstice was patting her silvery curls into place.

"Oh, I'd quite forgotten. Mr. Mackenzie sent a note by the steward—such a nice note—asking if we would dine with him tonight. Don't you think that would be lovely?"

Monnie said faintly that she thought it would be quite delightful, but her tone lacked enthusiasm and Miss Anstice glanced at her sharply. The child must be feeling the motion of the boat, she decided. Or perhaps it had been that salmon mayonnaise at luncheon. Miss Anstice never quite trusted salmon mayonnaise—

Monnie could scarcely believe he had spoken, so impassive was

DARLING FOOL

By MABEL McELLIOTT

Monnie could not have explained quite why she wished to avoid the magnificent Mr. Arthur Mackenzie. Surely he was all that anyone could wish in the way of a traveling companion. He was urbane, witty, wise, a man of the world with a fund of amusing tales at his tongue's end. Perhaps it was, she thought, the way he looked at her. There was something in the glance from those dark, deep shadowed eyes which reminded her of a cat getting ready to pounce. Oh, but that was nonsense! She was letting her imagination run away with itself.

The dinner frock she selected that night was one chosen with the greatest possible care when she had made a flying trip to the city to spend the money her mother had given her. It was of pale cream lace, demurely cut in front but sheared away at the back to show her lovely shoulders. It had been a bargain. One of those slim, cheap, effective frocks which the young wear so charmingly. She had been delighted on finding it but tonight she was dissatisfied with her reflection in the mirror. The glass gave back the portrait of a girl with wide starry eyes under a gleaming cap of burnished bronze hair.

Monnie had, of course, no jewels to wear and her velvet wrap was an old one. Miss Anstice, in silver lame which marked her new prosperity, approved of her.

"You look sweet enough to eat, my dear. The young men will be overwhelmed."

Monnie smiled politely. Miss Anstice was kind, but she hated her own looks. They were so ingenuitous—so unfinished. If she had only the poise, the unmatched assurance of Corinth Fanaway she would be content.

"More lipstick, my dear," Miss Anstice urged. "You can carry it off. It doesn't look bad. Thank heaven, I'm not so old style as my sister, Lida. She thinks every woman who uses cosmetics is on the straight road to perdition." Miss Anstice laughed her tinkling laugh.

The dining room steward who had seated them the night before conducted them now to a large round table decorated in gala fashion.

Arthur Mackenzie, seeming taller and more imposing in his dinner clothes, rose to greet them. There were half a dozen others already at table. Among them Monnie recognized only Corinth and Harris Fanaway. Corinth was dazzling in a frock of scarlet. The gray-haired man next Miss Anstice was a railroad president from the west. The tall red-haired woman with the flashing eyes whom Monnie had observed walking the deck with her Sealyham was evidently an actress. Corinth Fanaway said to her negligently, "I loved your play. It was marvelous."

"Did you, my dear?" The red-haired woman flashed a smile around the table. She had a deep, thrilling voice and her pearls were magnificent. Monnie thought. She was startled, therefore, to hear Fanaway's whisper a moment later.

"Wellworth's," he murmured, jerking his handsome head in the direction of the red-haired woman.

Monnie could scarcely believe he had spoken, so impassive was one of the graduates. Mrs. Miller will be remembered as Nina Fuller who for many years lived in this vicinity.

Mrs. John Hillson, who was accompanied by August Schaefer and daughter Malinda of Ashton, was called to Dysart, Iowa, Wednesday, by the sudden death of her brother, John Seebach, who passed away Tuesday morning after a stroke of apoplexy. He was 63 years old.

Funeral services were held Thursday afternoon at Dysart, Ia., and burial was made in the family lot.

LAST EVENING'S GAMES PRODUCE TWO SURPRISES

Loafers And Grocers Upset the Dope Bucket With Victories

Two surprising games were played before large crowds last evening in the City Soft Ball League. The schedule brought together two of the leading teams of the league, the Beier Loafers and Wink's Specials at the north side diamond, where a battle was fought which resulted in a victory for the bakers by a score of 10 to 8.

At the south field the DeMolay were engaged in a struggle against the Dixon Grocers which proved another surprise. The Grocers emerged the victors by a score of 7 to 2 in a well played game. Larkins of the victors registered a home run.

The chief upset of the week was the defeat of the Specials by the Beier Loafers at the north side field. Dempewolf registered a home run off Clark's delivery. Clark pitched one of the best games of the season thus far, striking out seven of his opponents and not permitting a walk.

SECOND CRASH ON SPEEDWAY: DRIVER VICTIM

Pittsburgh Man Is In A Hospital With Fractured Thigh

Indianapolis, May 26—(AP)—Undisturbed by the second spectacular accident of the time trials, race drivers at the motor speedway here today prepared for further attempts to qualify for the remaining seventeen of the 42 starting places in the annual 500-mile automobile classic to be run May 30.

William H. (Speed) Gardner, veteran Pittsburgh driver, today had a fractured left thigh and severe abrasions as a result of his slide across the width of the brick course after being tossed from his speedster yesterday.

Traveling more than 100 miles per hour on the first lap of the required 25-mile qualifying run, Gardner's car went out of control as it entered the northwest turn and crashed against the lower retaining wall. The pilot was tossed out and slid across the track, smashing feet first into a wooden guard rail.

Charles Schneider of Trufford, Pa., mechanic, remained in the racer as it spun three times on the track. He escaped with a shaking up.

Monday Al Aspen and Mitz Davis of Philadelphia received severe bruises when the speedster Aspen was attempting to qualify went into a 1,000-foot skid and hit the returning wall.

Babe Didrickson Too Much For Pro
Detroit, May 26—(AP)—If the women's national golf championship were decided on stamina, Babe Didrickson would be ready right now for the test.

She outlasted three hardy males over 27 holes on the Orchard Lake course yesterday and was insisting on at least nine holes more when her companions hobbled to the clubhouse, nursing aches, pains and sunburn.

Miss Didrickson, who makes no secret of her championship aspirations, is in earnest about the business of cutting down her strokes, under the tutelage of Frank Syron, Orchard Lake pro, one of her companions yesterday.

On the last nine holes she got a 42, six over par, the best score of her career. Syron said that his pupil's short game, her chief weakness, is improving and hazarded the prediction that titular hopes are not out of the question.

Chicago, May 26—(AP)—Umpire Ernest C. Quigley of the National League today was temporarily out of action, the result of contact with an exposed electric wire.

After yesterday's game between the Chicago Cubs and the Boston Braves, while changing his clothes, Quigley, damp from his work, backed into the wire in the umpire's dressing room, Dr. John F. Davis, the Chicago club physician said.

He was knocked unconscious, but was revived after Umpire George Barr had called for help, and was taken to the Illinois Masonic hospital. Dr. Davis said his condition was satisfactory, but that it would not be advisable for him to work for several days.

Babe Didrickson Too Much For Pro
Detroit, May 26—(AP)—If the women's national golf championship were decided on stamina, Babe Didrickson would be ready right now for the test.

She outlasted three hardy males over 27 holes on the Orchard Lake course yesterday and was insisting on at least nine holes more when her companions hobbled to the clubhouse, nursing aches, pains and sunburn.

Miss Didrickson, who makes no secret of her championship aspirations, is in earnest about the business of cutting down her strokes, under the tutelage of Frank Syron, Orchard Lake pro, one of her companions yesterday.

On the last nine holes she got a 42, six over par, the best score of her career. Syron said that his pupil's short game, her chief weakness, is improving and hazarded the prediction that titular hopes are not out of the question.
